THOUGHT and COMMENT

Great Statesman Submits His Vote

How many of our enraptured voters have never heard the name of the Great Senator Blahbermouth. Every child knows his name. Here with we produce the latest picture sent to us by wireless of the great statesman and diplomat.

We now have with us the Great Statesman. In a letter written to us Senator Blahbermouth tells of the fight that he is making for our glorious cause.

"Gentlemen: "When I was but a child, some person unknown taught me the terrible habit of putting sugar in my coffee and tea. Ah, how I hate the thoughts of what that caused me today.

"For days I have had trouble going to sleep while Senator Blahbermouth talked. I worried, worried until what remains of what was once a glorious head of hair, turned a brilliant grey.

"Then came my deliverance. General Motors, of the 234th Landlubbers came to my aid. "Ira," says the general, they call me Ira, have you read about the great excelsior ballot that is sweeping the nation. Read it—there is your salvation."

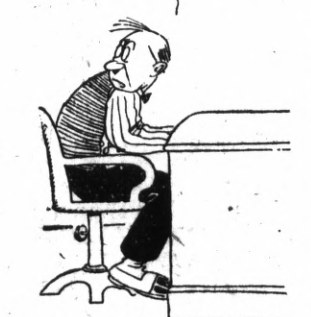

"I owe the vote precious hours of sleep. Now I am a changed man. I stand for the prohibiting of flavoring coffee, tea with sugar. For that was my terrible habit: I USED SUGAR IN MY COFFEE AND TEA.

"Now, sir, I have no trouble to go to sleep even when Senator Pohnson, that strong silent man from the great open spaces, where men are much and women are congressmen, is making a plea for the dredging and proper harbor facilities for San Pablo Creek.

"Gentlemen, I'm with you to the bloody finish.

"Even thine: "Senator Blahbermouth."

END COMES TO COL. COOLIDGE AS PRESIDENT NEARS BEDSIDE

Aged Man Passes Away Quietly

Has Made All Arrangements for His Burial and Cleared Up Matters

(By Universal Service)
PLYMOUTH, March 18.—Col. John C. Coolidge died at 10:41 tonight. The end which had been expected for hours came very quietly. He had been fairly steadily since 6:30 a. m. yesterday, when Dr. Albert M. Cram, his physician was hastily summoned after he suffered a sinking spell. All day his pulse beat irregularly and as night came it was impossible to take the count in the usual way at the wrist. He sank into a coma at nightfall from which he never emerged.

At 10 o'clock Dr. Cram detected signs indicating that the end was only a matter of minutes. The breathing hitherto rapid, slowed down and became a feeble effort. Early in the day the end was forecast when the Colonel suffered a sudden sinking spell that brought Dr. Cram rushing from his home in Bridgewater, seven miles away.

In spite of all medical efforts the Colonel sank rapidly. His heart going through many unusual activities.

The real beginning of the end according to Dr. Cram was just a week ago when a sudden heart attack sent the patient's heart beats up to 140.

The Colonel's death was the fulfillment of his own prophecy made a year ago, when he declared that he would not see another spring.

In the death of Colonel Coolidge a peculiar sequence of March episodes is noted bearing heavily on the fate of the Coolidge family on the fate of the Coolidge family. Two of the Coolidge's preceding the Colonel to the grave in March, the first was his wife, who died 41 years ago last Sunday and the other their only daughter Abbie, who died at 14 years of age 38 years ago last Monday.

It was in March last year that Colonel Coolidge harnessed his horse and drove through a snow storm to Ludlow, where he embarked for Washington to see his son Calvin inaugurated president. Two weeks later he returned and soon afterwards meeting Dr. (Continued on Page 8)

President Gets News Of Death Of Father As He Nears Home

Race Against Death is Lost as Special Train Rushes from Washington to Vermont

GETS WIRE AT BRIDGEPORT

Receives Word of Father's Passing After Entire Corps of Attendants Have Retired

BY JOHN T. LAMBERT
ON BOARD THE PRESIDENT SPECIAL TRAIN NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT, March 19.—President Coolidge was informed of his father's death shortly before midnight.

A telegram announcing the sad event was delivered as his train stopped briefly at Bridgeport at 11:50 o'clock. The telegram from secretary Sanders at Washington read:

10:42 p. m. Dr. Cram telephoned the following: "Your father passed away very quietly at 10:31."

Although prepared for bed he sat alone in his private compartment long after most of the attendants had retired and much later than is his custom. The message announcing that the race against death to the bedside of his father had been in vain was delivered to him by secret service operative James Haley.

Mrs. Coolidge quickly awakened and consoled the sorrowing president. Earlier bulletins containing the information of impending death had somewhat softened the shock.

Col. Forbes Is Admitted to Penitentiary to Start Sentence

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, March 18.—Charles R. Forbes was admitted to Leavenworth prison late today not as a prisoner but as a visitor. Although the ex-chief of the veterans bureau has been sentenced to two years in prison, Warden Biddle could not accept him today because the commitment papers had not arrived.

Col. Forbes in company with a friend and several newspaper men made a tour of the prison after which the new convict had a long talk with the warden in which the institution were explained.

Germany Not to Enter League In September

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,

(By Universal Service)
BERLIN, March 18.—Germany will not enter the League of Nations this fall. That is the prediction quite generally made in parliamentary and government circles here today.

With the League never very popular with the German masses, the way in which Germany was treated at Geneva has all but destroyed that faith in the League, which was beginning to grow, and is bringing a strong reaction which it is now believed will undoubtedly increase.

The disarmament conference scheduled for May is believed now to be dead. During the nine days I was in Geneva during the conference just closed, I found no interest whatever in the subject of disarmament aside from Germany and the United States. Inquiries about the possibility of disarmament were met in some delegations with scarcely concealed irritation.

Chancellor Luther and Foreign Minister Stresemann did not meet with any cheers when they quietly slipped into Berlin this afternoon on a special train from Geneva. Strong police precautions were taken to prevent any unfavorable (Continued on page 3)

Brewing Over Loss of Damage Suit and Impending Divorce Held Cause of Acts

PLACERVILLE, March 18.—W. S. Biggs, supervisor of El Dorado county, and Captain E. C. Slaterback, state traffic officer, were patrolling the highway on the look out for John M. Goins, wanted for the murder of five women, when a sedan came dashing up the highway. The officers tried to halt the car but ignoring the command to stop the driver stepped on the gas. Both men fired a couple of shots in the air. When the driver of the sedan did not come to a halt they fired directly at the speeding machine. In rounding a curve the car went off the road and overturned. When the officer and Biggs came upon the scene they found the driver under the car dead.

Whether he was shot by his pursuers or whether he killed himself has not been ascertained. The authorities claim that the dead man is Goins who has been hunted since early this afternoon.

GALT, Cal., Mar. 18.—Climaxing his act of killing which already had claimed three lives, M. J. Goins, Stockton, Cal., service station operator, late today shot and killed three more persons.

Goins appeared at the farm of Joe Marindo, near here, and asked for information regarding the roads.

Without apparent cause he whipped out a revolver and shot and killed Marindo, Marindo's wife and daughter.

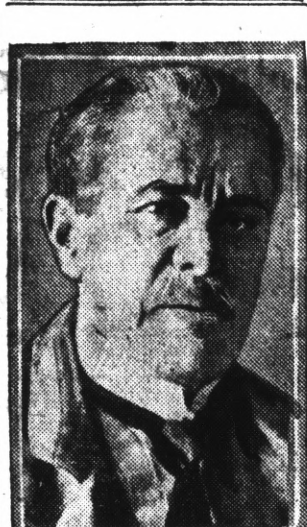

We then fled in the automobile in which he made his escape from Stockton.

Galt is between Stockton and Sacramento and about fourteen miles from Sacramento.

The sheriff's office was notified at Sacramento and posesses took the road.

LEGION URGES CONGRESS TO ADMIT VETS

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, Mar. 18.—Federal immigration officials and representatives of World War Veterans organizations joined today in urging congress to let down the immigration bars to foreign-born American war veterans now stranded abroad.

A host of witnesses, appearing before the Senate immigration committee, urged passage of a bill to permit these veterans and their families to enter the United States in excess of quota restrictions as a "simple act of justice."

Such a measure, introduced by Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, at the request of the Hearst newspapers, is now pending before the committee.

A bill to accomplish a similar result has been introduced by Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York. It was considered by the Senate Committee today.

Speaking officially for the Department of Labor, Assistant Secretary of Labor W. W. Hubbard, said:

"The department favors this legislation just as I do."

Hubbard urged widening the scope of the bill so as to permit also the return of foreign-born veterans of the Spanish War.

Hubbard was supported in his plea by Henry Curran, Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, who said:

Thug Attacks And Relieves Victim Of $55 On Street Here

Man is Found Unconscious in Rear of Record Herald Office On Macdonald Ave.

INJURIES ARE NOT SERIOUS

Is Struck or Kicked in Back On Well Lighted Street and Then Dragged to Alley

Found lying unconscious on the ground at the rear of the RECORD-HERALD office shortly after 9 o'clock last night and groaning from a blow said to have been received from a thug, J. Clotis Chandler registered at the Civic Center hotel was rushed to the Emergency hospital. According to statements made by the injured man, his assailant robbed him of a wallet containing fifty-five dollars in bills.

Chandler who was on his way home from a show noticed a man loitering on the corner of Twenty-second street and Macdonald avenue, across from the RECORD-HERALD office, but paid no attention to him. He had just crossed the street when he was struck in the back and seized by the shoulders. He was then dragged to the rear of the RECORD-HERALD office where he was found by Elmer J. Conn, who was on his way home, after having closed his drug store at Twenty-third street and Macdonald avenue.

Conn heard Chandler groaning and suspecting foul play brought the news to the RECORD-HERALD office. The police were summoned and Officer George Bingley carried Chandler in his car to the office of Dr. St. John Henderson. (Continued on Page 8)

Permit Secured For Erection of Memorial Gate

A building permit was issued yesterday for the construction of the Nichol Memorial gateway which is now being erected at the Macdonald avenue frontage of Nichol. Cost of the entrance which will be constructed of reinforced concrete with moulded cement ornaments is placed at $3,150.

The memorial which is being erected by Miss Mary Nichol, president of the John Nichol company, in honor of her father John Nichol who was a Richmond pioneer, will mark the site where, in the days of the Civil War, a cavalry company to which John Nichol belonged used the ground for a drill field.

According to the plans of the architects, James T. Nabett and R. F. De Sanno of Richmond, the entrance will be flanked on either side of a curved wall of granite finished concrete pylons approximately twelve feet in height. Details in cast cement will adorn the pylons. Bronze lanterns, electric lighted, will surmount the steeple ends of the gate. Each wing will be eighteen feet in length and will have concrete benches following the outline of the wall. The distance between the two pylons is twenty feet.

Inside the park, and forming the focal point will be a flagpole with concrete base. The base will be approximately thirteen feet in height. Besides the socket, for which a simple but ornamental design has been drawn, the base will be flanked by two fountains in moulded cement.

The flagpole base will rest on a concrete foundation, eighteen feet square.

Construction of the memorial is being handled by C. Overaa, who was awarded the contract.

JOSEPH CASEY LOSES LIFE IN AUTO ACCIDENT AT SONOMACITY

Companions of Deceased Narrowly Escaped With Lives In Crash Last Night

3 RICHMOND MEN IN CAR

Body Removed and Inquest Held, Cause of Death Is Determined

(Special to Record Herald)
SONOMA, March 18.—Joseph Casey, stillman of Standard Oil company at Richmond, met with a tragic death about 5 o'clock here tonight, when an automobile he was driving struck a bridge, overturned and rolled into a creek near Buena Vista, about one mile south of here and Casey was pinned underneath. It is believed that death was due to drowning.

His companions, Hale Phillips, member of the Richmond Fire department, at 47 Park Place, and Richard Molen, rigger at the Standard Oil company, and who resides at 140 Santa Fe avenue, escaped with their lives.

Phillips received very severe bruises about the arms, while Molen escaped without any injuries.

Deputy Sheriff Emmett Mullen of Sonoma, was immediately notified, and the remains of Casey were brought to this town, where the inquest was held tonight. The jury returned a verdict to the effect that the accident was unavoidable, and that death was due to drowning.

Casey and his friends were on their way to Richmond, and near Buena Vista, he crossed the tracks of the California Northwestern railroad. Just the other side is a deep incline, and close by a bridge. It is believed that in going down the incline Casey lost control of the machine. It catapulted against the bridge, overturned and then rolled into the creek.

Passersby who witnessed the accident rushed to the rescue of the men. The machine was uplifted and Phillips dragged out, but Casey was dead by the time he was extricated.

In the crash Molen was thrown clear of the auto, and escaped without any injuries.

Phillips left a short time after the inquest, for his home in Richmond.

Young Casey who lost his life in the accident, was single, 31 years of age, and resided with his mother, Mrs. Bridget Casey at 308 Golden Gate avenue, Pt. Richmond. Besides the mother he leaves a sister, Mary Casey, and two brothers, John and Stanislaus Casey, all residents of this city.

Rain Fails to Stop Caravan Which Toured County to Advertise the Opening of Municipal Natatorium

Despite the rain which fell throughout the Bay Region yesterday, twenty-five cars of Richmond's prominent citizens formed a caravan and toured the county to advertise the opening of the new Municipal Natatorium Saturday. Escorted by a squad of city and county traffic officers, the cars left Richmond at 8:30 a. m. Through the efforts of the officers the schedule was followed according to the plans. Traffic Officers Forest Lee, E. M. Baker George Leber, R. R. Cheek and Harry Boyer were on hand.

Fire Chief W. P. Cooper, in his official automobile lead the caravan; C. C. Kratzer was marshal and was assisted by the members of the parade committee, which included M. E. Hazelton of the Richmond Merchants association and A. L. Paulsen of the Realty Board.

The East Contra Costa County Chamber of Commerce served a dinner to the visitors at Brentwood.

The bathing beauties danced to music furnished by the municipal band in the various cities visited. The Charleston was danced by the Misses Grace Lowell and Nelda Hailles and the Misses Marcella Whitney and Dorothy Wood danced a fox trot. The bathing girls danced at each of the cities on the tour and even the rain, which began falling when the caravan reached Concord, did not prevent them from furnishing part of the entertainment.

Ben Blow, vice-president and general manager of the Victory Highway association, delivered short addresses on the Memorial Marker, which will be erected May 31, to the men who sacrificed their lives for their country during the war. He invited each of the cities to attend the dedication ceremonies, which will take place at the county line on the Victory Highway. He called attention to the list of names published yesterday and requested that names not on the list be forwarded to the secretary of the (Continued On Page 3)

LAWLESSNESS

Reviewing the stupendous collapse of public order which results from the bootlegging and blind pigging era under which the whole country lies stricken, nothing in the sorrowful narrative is so filled with poignancy and condemnation as the sacrifice of youth on the altar of illicit greed.

Youth is the agent of the bootlegger and of the bling pig. Youth idling in the pool room and at the "soft drink" stand is the ready conspirator in the profitable contest against law. Youth, drifting uneasily on the fringe of social conformity, is the inevitable captive of the "easy road." The story of prohibition violation is the story of youth, thousands and thousands of them, plying their illicit trade running their risks of prison and death, and hardening themselves to a lifetime of outlawry.

What manner of men do these become, these young men, with wealth and indulgence as the prize, throw their energies into the scales of lawlessness? What is the atmosphere they create? What of the children they bring into the world? What of the future effect on this country's national life of a new generation of men and women, born and bred into a tradition of contempt for the law and tutored only in the desperate conditions of the new underworld?

These are the questions which must root every decent citizen in his tracks and make him examine the depths of his heart of the solution.

SING LOW

The democrats who only a few months ago in their newspapers were daily winning control of the house and senate in the 1926 election have begun to worry over the soundness of their prediction. From certain states where previously they expected victories, they have learned that the voters are in a state of mind, in view of democratic antics, as to whether if they go further they may not fare worse.

The voters have begun to appreciate that even the highest minded democrat, once he takes his seat in the senate, is hog-tied to the rules and precedents as established by Pat Harrison, Tom Heflin and the other real leaders of the democratic party. In short, that in selecting a senator for service and attention to the public business, the standards of the party with which he is affiliated are the ruling and determining influences which makes his own personal integrity an incidental matter. As a result in several of the states the wave of enthusiasm having failed to develop democratic successors to republican senators the ratio of the chance has been materially discounted.

Republicans who stole the chair in which President Coolidge sat in the Essex County Republican club in Massachusetts were disciplined, but that isn't anything to what happened to the democrats who tried to take Cal's White House chair away from him.

If the youth of this land is so weak that it can be corrupted by classics such as Ovid's works, containing naughtiness that any high school boy or girl can find in almost any company, then let 'er rip say we.

Some Pages from American History

By VICTOR MORGAN

THE FIRES OF NEW YORK

It was almost the middle of the eighteenth century that there broke out in New York a large number of incendiary fires. Now this had happened once before. The cause at that time was said to be a negro uprising.

And so this time the blame was laid at the same door. The siege of fires and of riot and of madness has been called the Negro Plot.

You see there had been some slave uprising in the south. The negro slaves of South Carolina had risen in revolt and there had been times when the white people had been terrorized. This was because for a while there were more slaves than white people and of course, the slaves immediately thought of plots for escape from bondage. Revolt looked easy. There had been murders and burnings and many things which were a disgrace to our country.

So when the New York fires started the first thing in the minds of the population was that the New York negroes were joining those from the south in great rebellion.

Of course there were not nearly so many slaves in the north as there were in the south. And we must never lose sight of that fact as we come closer to the Civil War. Nor must we forget that at this time there seemed little question as to the right and wrong but most of them were willing enough slave-holders.

The New Yorkers were terrorized as soon as the news of the fires spread. They let their terror rather than their reason guide them and before the revolt was put down and peace was restored twenty-two persons had been hanged. Four of them were white people. And thirteen negroes were burned.

Later historians tell us that there was not a word of truth in the rumors that negroes were to blame, or indeed in the plot at all. They say that all of the persons killed were innocent of any real wrong doing.

That will show you how often the mob is wrong, and why justice should be meted calmly and by disinterested persons.

LESSON IN HOME DRESSMAKING

Model for Soft Materials that Permit the Effective Use of Gathers or Fine Tucks

Simple and Chic

If one is seeking a model that expresses simplicity and chic at one and the same time, here it is. The frock is suited to development in crepe de Chine, crepe satin, the flatter Georges, etc. It has the ultra-modish extended shoulders and oval neckline front and back. It is gathered on the shoulders and again at the center-front, where a ribbon is arranged over the gathers. If preferred, fine tucks may take the place of gathers. In medium size, the model requires 3 1/2 yards 36-inch material, if the double arm-hole trimming is used.

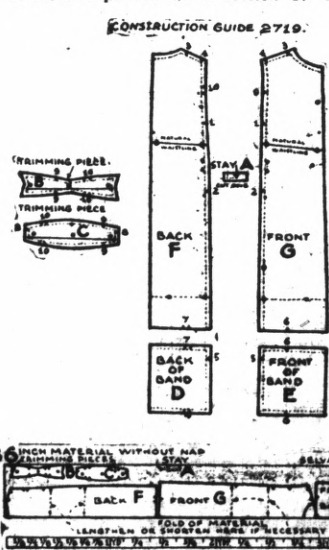

The cutting problem is greatly simplified by the printed pattern. The tissues are simply pinned on the material, then cut around the edges. The notches should be marked with chalk or tailor's tacks. Be sure to mark them before the pattern is removed.

Then, slash down the waist from the neck as far as the upper large perforation. Bind slashed edges and finish for closing. Gather across center-front below the waistline, drawing the gathers to fit.

Close underarm seam of dress, and leave edges free above medium perforation in back F and below lower large perforation in front G. Turn hem at lower edge of dress on medium perforations. Next, close shoulder seam, then join front and back band sections D and E, and fold through the center. Baste edges together. Slip band underneath front of dress and sew underneath hem. Form an inverted pleat at the side and stitch to position.

Now, close seam of trimming piece, fold through center and join the edges. Fold trimming piece through center on line of large perforations and join edges. Arrange section V on section C with small perforation at the seam. Bring edges of section B together at medium perforation in section C. Baste edges to position. Sew trimming pieces to arm-hole, and bring medium perforation in section to shoulder seam.

This is an unusually simple and graceful model.

A DARK TALE OF QUAKER HALL

In which Time, Tide and Electric Lighting Systems Wait Not Even for His Honor, The Mayor.

ON THE good old days the mayor's court had adjourned by noon. Memorial Day, Fourth of July and Labor Day speeches were delivered out of doors and long before sunset. So the long, slanting shadows of eventide usually found His Honor comfortably seated on his own front porch or before his own glowing hearth, the titanic cares of his office thrust from his shoulders for the balance of the day at least.

Times Have Changed
Not so in these piping days of "business in government." Progress is the patron saint at City Hall in these times—and Progress has a way of treading on the heels of the leisurely. There is no rest for weary mayor of the roaring metropolis in this day of our Lord. Else there would not be this story.

Lunch time was but a faint memory and dinner time was nudging impatiently at his elbow as Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick sat in his office in the great man-made mountain of stone known as City Hall in Philadelphia a few days ago. Outside the myriad lights of the great city were battling against the pall of descending night. Day time shops and stores and offices of the business districts were closing and thousands upon thousands of executives and clerks, stenographers and office boys were pouring out into the streets and thence into the subways, the buses and the surface cars, homeward bound. In another hour the bustle and noise of the day would have ended and the bustle and noise of the night would have begun. Restaurants and hotel dining rooms and just plain eating places were filling rapidly. Musicians were tuning violins and cellos and oboes. Theatres were swinging wide their welcoming doorways.

"Come the Dusk"
But still the Mayor sat at his desk, leaning forward into the bright circle of light cast by the ornate desk lamp. Minute after minute, steadily and without pause, the Mayor plied his pen upon the big pile of papers before him. Time after time the pen shifted from one paper, poised momentarily above another, and then descended to inscribe the name of W. Freeland Kendrick. Check after check, letter after letter, ordinance after ordinance, commission after commission was lifted by the hand of a lone secretary at the Mayor's side, placed in position for the signature.

MANY YEARS OF SILENCE BRIDGED BY TELEPHONE

Hearing his father's voice for the first time in twenty-three years, Herbert Reese of Livingston, Moit, had the privilege the other day of talking with his father, H. E. Reese, of Maryville, Mo. Young Reese went west nearly a quarter of a century ago and has never had the opportunity of retracing his steps. Finally the desire to hear his father's voice once more led him to take advantage of the long distance service, and the conversation with the home folks followed.

Hon. W. Freeland Kendrick, Mayor of Philadelphia and then lifted away to a new pile as the fresh ink gleamed upon it.

Most of the other offices in the huge building had closed. Others were closing at this very moment. In a few minutes more the lights in the Mayor's office and those in the corridors would be the only lights burning in the cavernous structure. Still the Mayor and his lone clerk labored silently.

Half an hour later the Mayor signed the last of the great pile of papers, leaned back in his chair, rose and stretched. The clerk transferred the pile of signed documents to a basket upon a table across the room and reached for his hat and coat. The Mayor walked wearily toward a door leading to a wash-room, and—the office, the corridor outside, the whole interior of the building suddenly went dark. The lights of the building had failed!

Lost Like Moses
The Mayor called out to the clerk. The clerk wheeled round, started in the direction from which his chief's voice had come and stumbled over a chair. The Mayor turned in the direction from which he heard the clerk swear, tried to escape his way through the ink blackness and came up sharply against a wall. "Strike a match," called out the Mayor to the clerk.

"Sorry, sir but I haven't one," replied the clerk.

"There's a box of them on my desk," suggested the Mayor.

"Which way is your desk?" queried the clerk.

"Over that way," the Mayor directed, waving a hand that even he could not see in the darkness.

Back Into the Light

While the clerk struck matches and held them aloft, the Mayor found his coat and hat and donned them. Then the pair groped their way by the aid of matchlight to a doorway and thence to a corridor. But they were still deep in the bowels of the huge, dark old building. To both it seemed hours before they descended the last step and gained the street. The street lights were burning brightly. The Mayor bade his clerk good night and strode off to his waiting automobile.

A few days later there appeared upon Mayor Kendrick's desk at City Hall an electric flashlight. The clerk saw it and grinned. His Honor grinned back.

"Suppose you couldn't have found those matches," suggested the Mayor.

President Gets News Of Death As He Nears Home

day and night has failed to clear the severest passages in the narrow roadway, the President has learned. Therefore, sleighs provided by the old neighbors will convey the President and Mrs. Coolidge over the final, narrow, climbing stretch to the summit of Plymouth Notch.

A spirit of sorrow pervades the special train tonight. President and Mrs. Coolidge retired alone to their private compartments. Attorney-General John Garibaldi Sargent, old family friend, alone accompanies them, with Major James P. Coughlin, the President's personal physician. The remainder of the party is made up of the ubiquitous secret service staff and of newspapermen.

President Coolidge was in constant communication with the family home throughout the day. Complete arrangements to receive telegraphic bulletins along the line were made.

Dr. Cram informed him by phone this forenoon that a marked, adverse change was evident in the aged gentleman who with patience and courage has battled a series of illnesses the past eight months. Colonel Coolidge would possibly live forty-eight hours, Dr. Cram said. Subsequent messages indicated that the physician's earlier prediction was optimistic. Death was impending, it was said.

President Coolidge at once gave orders for the special train. All his engagements were canceled. Scores of personal friends, who several days ago were invited to a White House musicale arranged for this afternoon, were advised of the serious turn of events.

Silently, the President embarked upon the second, and final, race to his father.

would be an act of justice to these men who loved America enough to fight her battles.

"We should be big and broad and courageous enough to admit one wrong has been done by this law and we intend to remedy it," Curran told of one crippled veteran, who fought beneath American colors in the World War, who is now selling pencils outside the American Consulate in Athens.

The American Legion placed its stamp of approval on the bill through John Thomas Taylor, its legislative representative. Taylor estimated that not more than $10,000 persons would enter in excess of quota should the bill become law.

He said there are 2,039 disabled American veterans in foreign lands drawing compensation from the United States government.

Thomas Kirby, representing the disabled American veterans, asserted his organization is "wholeheartedly behind this legislation." "We feel that men who went overseas and gave their heart, soul and body in the cause of America should be allowed to reside here with their families if they desire," said Kirby.

The only discordant note was struck by Francis H. Kinnicutt, representing the Allied Patriotic Societies of New York, who feared such legislation "might be too broad." Kinnicutt said he favors allowing the veterans to return only in the event they have not become citizens of foreign countries.

Senator Reed expressed himself later as "highly gratified" at the endorsement given by the veterans organizations.

Representative Elish, of New York, author of a similar bill in the House, said he was satisfied if the Senate passes the bill it will receive approval from the house.

Seventh Annual School Week of Masons April 26

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18.—The dates for the seventh annual observance of public schools week by the Masonic Grand lodge of California were announced here today by grand master Albert E. Boynton as Monday, April 26th, to the 30th. At the same time the committee was announced to have general charge of the week over the state. Separate committees will have charge of the week's activities in the various communities of the State.

Originally instituted as a Masonic function, programs being held in the lodge rooms, intramural sports and public halls were used and the general public invited. The meetings will be open to the general public again this year.

In the proclamation issued today setting the dates for the week grand master Boynton stated that the primary object of the week was to afford the public in general and parents in particular an opportunity to become informed on the real condition of our public schools, what the schools are aiming to do and the problems confronting those entrusted with the control of school affairs and the training of children.

Entertainments and tableaux featuring school children were an important part of the programs last year and will be repeated in many communities this year, with leading educators and laymen versed in school matters as speakers.

The general committee for the state is as follows: Charles Albert Adams, chairman; Vaughan MacCaughy, secretary; Arthur Chamberlain, Wesley W. Kergan, Elias Ellison, of San Francisco; Robert A. Odell, Vierling Kersey, Harry S. Lasker, Lee T. Mullen, of Los Angeles; Arthur M. Brown, Pasadena; Fred M. Hunter, Oakland, and Roy Cloud, Redwood City.

demonstrations of outward occurrences. A large portion of policy were drawn around the station, and even the press representatives were not permitted through the line without a special pass from the foreign office.

Members of the cabinet, the British and French ambassadors, and Frau Stresemann were on the platform when the train pulled in. Luther and Stresemann looked tired and worried after their arrival at Wilhelmstrasse. Chancellor Luther called personally on President Von Hindenburg to report to him.

A cabinet meeting is called for tonight to discuss policy and measures to meet the attacks of the Nationalists and Communists who have announced their intention to bring about the fall of the government because Luther and Stresemann's Locarno and Geneva policies were shipwrecked.

A portion of the German press continues to point to Mussolini as the mysterious hand which is alleged to have sabotaged the Geneva meeting. The papers strongly feature the Anti-German edict in the Italian press.

Are American Girls More Beautiful Than Foreign Women?

GRETA GARBO

Greta Garbo, Swedish beauty and motion picture star, who recently arrived in America to star in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Ivanhoe," in which she played the leading role.

Are American women really more beautiful than their European sisters? Famous artists and experts of feminine pulchritude who have visited this country in search of beautiful women have answered this question both ways. Some there are who find the perfect type of any country more beautiful than the blending of races that make the type of American woman, while other equally notable beauty experts are of the opposite opinion.

To get the feminine reaction to this oft discussed question, we asked Greta Garbo, famous Swedish beauty and motion picture star who recently arrived in this country to star in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, and whose American debut was made recently as the star of "Ivanhoe," to tell us her opinion of the difference between American and European women.

"If one looks for grooming and a well dressed appearance, the American woman as a whole, is far superior to the women abroad even French women," says Miss Garbo. "But, if one looks for distinction and individuality, the European woman is more beautiful."

"Because of the tremendous business of manufacturing clothing in America the women here have less difficulty in keeping up with the fashion and they therefore always appear chic and well dressed. This naturally gives them the appearance of beauty, which, without the aid of fashion, they would not have. But the same methods which make it so easy for them to be smartly gowned also make them appear standardized, so that one sees the women of one city in America turned out exactly the same as the women in a city at the other end of the country."

European women are more individualized, not only in the matter of dress, but in their manner of wearing them. Even in make-up one finds the European woman an individual. Where here almost all women use the rouge pot and lip stick in almost the same manner, you will find the cosmopolitan woman uses cosmetics to accentuate her good points only, or else she leaves the jars on her dressing table strictly alone. One sees in America the same red-checked and red-lipped maiden in every city, while in Europe each make-up is studied to suit each individual type of beauty. For instance, the pale beauty wouldn't think of marring her loveliness by applying rouge; rather does she instinctively understand that her pallor should be accentuated to give her more charm.

"There is distinction in the European woman's make-up as there is in her dress, and because of this I should say that though en masse the American women are more beautiful if taken special-

DEMPEY AGAIN
We wonder when the sport writers will get tired of hearing the "proposed" Dempsey-Wills fight. Still rumors from Chicago to the effect that Dempsey will at the city when the anti-boxing law is recalled. Another one of the Windy City's jokes!

SEALS LOSE
Wow! Well sometimes the west cannot beat the east when it comes down to swatting the household covered pill. This was demonstrated when the Pittsburgh Pirates took the Seals down the line 6-3 at San Francisco the other day. Hall-Rhyme and Paul Waner were the starring men for the Seals.

FOOTBALL
Now is the time for the large sporting goods stores to send to the schools their sporting catalogues and this is the time the rumors about the different coaches being appointed. Pat Page, who was athletic director of the Butler University, has been contacted for by the Indiana University. Page succeeds Navy Bill Ingram who resigned to take the position as head coach at the navy academy.

U. C. NOT TO PLAY JAPS
Too bad! The University of California baseball team will not meet the Japanese team in Japan this summer in spite of broad-casting to that effect by sports writers. If the little brown men and the U. C. team would meet there is some doubt as to the outcome for the Bruin team for the Japs turn out some mighty fine ball teams that are able to handle the best of the west.

Death Toll of Six Result of Murder Orgy

The slayer was made by the Constable here who hurried to the scene of the shootings.

The said that he believed Goins was related to the Marinids possibly by marriage.
Goins went on a murderous rampage at Stockton this afternoon, killed his wife and her sister in a ranch house four miles from here, before he returned to this city, killed Mrs. George P. McNoble, wife of the president of the California Bar Association, and escaped in an automobile.

Goins has been a resident of Stockton for twenty years, recently his wife, Mrs. Florence Pedesta Goins, started divorce proceedings and engaged Judge McNoble to represent her. Goins, failing to effect a reconciliation, is believed to have become insane.

That Goins went to the Pedesta ranch and killed his wife and her sister, Minnie Pedesta, after she had refused to return to him, and then sped here to kill McNoble because of his legal connection with the divorce, and killed the attorney, San Francisco when he received word of his wife's death, McNoble collapsed.

Mrs. McNoble was murdered in the presence of her three small children. George McNoble, 14, said Goins came to the door, asked for his father, who he named, and then sped here to kill McNoble because of his legal connection with the divorce, and killed the attorney, San Francisco when he received word of his wife's death, McNoble collapsed.

Helen In Semi Finals At Nice

(By Universal Service)
CANNES, France, Mar. 18.—Helen Wills became a semi-finalist in her ninth Riviera singles tournament today when she defeated Miss J.M. Padwick of England, 2-0, 6-0. The American girl will meet Miss Eileen Bennett of England, a player that she has repeatedly beaten by straight set scores, tomorrow.
The gallery that attended the Padwick-Wills match today saw in action one of the smoothest working tennis machines that has ever functioned along the Riviera. Two months of constant tournament competition has added a remarkable polish to the American players championship form.
The California girl's powerful ground strokes—the foundation of her style of her game—are being executed with a rhythm and grace that calls to mind the style of her famous rival, Suzanne Lenglen.

HEEDED MOTHER'S ADVICE
Oakland, Cal., Feb. 26, 1926.
For more than a year I suffered from hemorrhage from a tumor. During this time I was treated by several physicians, all of whom agreed that an operation was the only thing that could help me. Neither my husband nor I liked the idea of the knife.

Upon the advice of my mother who, after having an operation on the right side, the wound forming a fistula which had never healed for 14 years, had found complete relief and fistula healed by drinking the Fong Wan Herbs, I decided to try them.

Owing to my terrible condition and my extremely poor health, it took about six months before I was entirely well. I am now in splendid health and my old trouble have been completely vanquished.

I formerly lived at 1805 Howard street, San Francisco, but have recently removed to Oakland. My phone number is Market 8560.

The final battle of the Bigdowskis was held on Wednesday at Martinez prior to the divorce action on Thursday. It is said that the dispute started over who owned a cow and Antonio and Maria started the battle.

It is alleged that Antonio started with a club at his wife who promptly entered the battle with a pitchfork.

SACRAMENTO, Mar. 18.—California autoists who fail to obey the mandate of state traffic officers to "clean up" their plates will be subject to arrest under orders issued today by Will H. Marsh, chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles. Marsh has instructed the officers to stop persons with plates covered with mud and grease or with plates placed behind bumpers or in any other condition likely to obscure a clear view of them.

"The dirty or hidden plate is the favorite resort of the criminal," Marsh said.

Thug Attacks and Relieves Victim of $55 On Street Here

ly where a preliminary examination was made. Chandler was unable to give a description of his assailant other than that he was well dressed and wore a dark suit and hat. He describes the thug as being a large, heavy-built man, but could not state the age, as he said he paid little attention when he passed him.

Dr. Healy, who gave him a cursory examination, said that the blow could have been made by the knee of the man attacking him instead of a club as believed by Chandler. He said that the absence of bruises tended to confirm this statement and said that the lad was probably suffering from a severely strained back. He ordered Chandler removed to the Cottage hospital where a further examination of his injuries will be made to ascertain whether or not there are any broken bones.

Chandler, who came to Richmond yesterday, was formerly employed by the Kerlin Dairy.

Groaning with pain, Chandler was at first unable to give information concerning the attack. He was found lying face down in a newly spaded plot of ground. Inspector Oliver Wiley dispatched to the scene was unable to find any clue of the thug.

The daring of the robber was shown by the fact that the corner where the attack occurred is well lighted and at that hour of the night, a great number of pedestrians are passing.

Hawaiian Girl Haired As Hero

(By Universal Service)
HILO, T. H., March 18.—Violet Kauka, a seven-year-old Hawaiian girl has been hailed here as a community heroine, following the rescue of her younger sister and a playmate who has drifted out to sea in a rowboat.

The two children were playing in the boat and did not notice that it started to drift away from shore. The servant girl in a neighboring beach residence first saw the predicament and started for help. In the meantime the Hawaiian youngsters stripped off her clothing and dived in for the rescue. She successfully negotiated the quarter-mile swim, seized the rope, and towed the children to safety.

Violet is a typical Hawaiian "water-baby" having learned to swim at the age of five.

League Question is Reopened In Senate

WASHINGTON, March 18.—America may yet be saved from the entanglements of European affairs through the World Court developments in the Senate was indicated today when the entire issue was revived by the decision of the League of Nations to invite the United States to a conference to discuss American reservations to the court.

The irreconcilables at once formed their battle line for a last ditch fight against sending an American representative to the proposed conference. They are confident the Senate would not sanction such action.

End Comes to Col. Coolidge As Son Nears Bedside

Cram in the postoffice the Colonel asked him to come over to his house and find out what ailed him. He had contracted a heavy cold, which many claim was the result of his long journey. Today, a year later, almost to the day he passed away and in a few days will be buried in the side of a hill, half a mile from his home.

W. D. Cabot of Woodstock, who was funeral director for the interment of young Calvin Coolidge, Jr., will prepare the Colonel's body for burial. The old man himself made arrangements for his burial several weeks ago and even paid all the costs it will entail.

Azro Johnston the town leading selectman was called to the sick room a little over a week and required to promise that he would dig the grave for the burial. He too was paid. Others to whom the Colonel owed small sums were called and every debt he owed was cleared.

Colonel Coolidge died in the little bedroom leading from the north side of the old fashioned sitting room in which he delivered the oath of office as President of the United States to his son Calvin after Warren G. Harding died.

MAKES STUBBORN FIGHT
PLYMOUTH, Vt., March 18.—Col. John C. Coolidge made a stubborn fight tonight to retain his life long enough to leave his son, President Coolidge who is speeding to the aged man's bedside.

He weakened so rapidly during the day that Doctor Cram was unable to say whether his patient could live until the President arrived. Since early morning when Col. Coolidge took an alarming slump, he has failed more rapidly than for several days. His pulse alternately beats much too fast or too slowly. For three days the sick man has taken no nourishment and has been kept under the influence of drugs to deaden the pain.

When President Coolidge reaches Woodstock, 13 miles away, he will complete the journey in an automobile over a road from which the deep snow has been plowed for his benefit. Horses will be stationed along the way for use in emergency.

National Guardsmen are due to arrive from Ludlow in the morning to act as a Guard of Honor. Scores of country people are gathered in the little store here tonight waiting for the bulletins from the sick room. The dance hall upstairs has been turned over to a score of newspaper correspondents.

At six o'clock this afternoon Dr. Cram told the reporters that the Colonel had failed perceptibly all afternoon.

The only sign of animation he displayed was the wan smile that crept across his face when he was told that his distinguished son was on the way to see him. Then he lapsed into a semi-coma condition.

BORN IN PLYMOUTH
WASHINGTON, Mar. 18.—Colonel John Calvin Coolidge was born on March 31, 1845, at Plymouth, in the Vermont hills.

There he was educated, married, reared a family and all the offices within the gift of his neighbors and became the outstanding figure of the community. It has been said of the Coolidges that they were as silent and sturdy as the hills themselves. They were, in fact, among the first to bring a permanent white civilization there. Captain John Coolidge, fresh from Lexington, Bunker Hill and subsequent major engagements of the Revolution, moved to Vermont in 1781 and cleared a farm. He was made a selectman at the first town meeting, eight years later.

The Captain was the Colonel's great grandfather, and the succeeding generations of Coolidges have there maintained the family home, each a conspicuous figure in public life.

The Colonel was the ninth generation of Coolidges on New England soil. Their advent began with John, one of the proprietors of the colony of the Massachusetts Bay, who came to America with the English in search of religious freedom, was made a freeman in 1636 and, two years later, one of eleven men chosen "to order the civil affairs of ye town of Watertown," now Watertown, Mass. Of the ten generations of the Coolidges, including the President, six of the major members bore the familiar "John" and "Calvin," and the Colonel and the President bore both of them.

Colonel Coolidge was educated in the local public schools and at the Black River Academy, in the adjoining town of Ludlow, of which the President is the most distinguished alumnus.

At the age of twenty-three, Col. Coolidge opened the village store at Plymouth Notch, which also served as his dwelling and in which President Coolidge was born. He retired ten years later, "settling down to the farmer's simple life" in the frame farmhouse across the road where, on August 2, 1923, by the name of the Kerosene lamp, he administered the oath of office of President to his son.

Colonel Coolidge has been a consistent collector of taxes, superintendent of schools and selectman, holding some of the offices for twenty-five consecutive years.

He was a member of the Vermont house of representatives six years, 1872-1878, and of the Senate from 1890 to 1912. He was a member of Governor Stickney's staff, thereby deriving his title of Colonel.

He was a trustee of the Academy from which he graduated. He was in recent years a trustee of the Ludlow Savings Bank. He was a Republican and a Baptist.

Colonel Coolidge was twice married. It was his first wife, Victoria Josephine Moore, who bore their two children, the President, born July 1, 1872, and Alice Grace, born April 15, 1875. Mrs. Coolidge died in 1885, at the age of thirty-nine and the daughter five years later, at the age of fifteen.

He married, in 1891, Carrie A. Brown, who, like the first Mrs. Coolidge, was also a native of Plymouth. She said of the President, "Calvin has always been a loving and dutiful son." Mrs. Coolidge died in 1920.

The decline of Colonel Coolidge's health began a year ago. He suffered recurring heart blows, which caused temporary paralysis. Upon the insistence of his son, he went to Boston and was there examined and treated at the Massachusetts General Hospital. His illness became acute in the early summer and, last June, he was afflicted by a severe prostatic ailment which caused an emergency operation to be performed upon him.

REPORT IS MADE BY GRAND JURY OF THE COUNTY

Brief and commendatory in its investigation of conditions in Contra Costa county, the report of the 1925-1926 grand jury was yesterday presented to Superior Court Justice H. V. Alvarado. Satisfaction with the present manner in which county officials are conducting their departments was voiced throughout the report.

County offices are conducted in an efficient and economical manner and are "entirely satisfactory administered." Superintendent of Schools W. H. Hanlon, received special praise from the jury of which Armond NStow of Pittsburg was chairman.

The report condemns drinking among school students and finds that liquor is easily secured by them. They urge that all night dances be eliminated or that strict supervision be placed upon the night parties.

The jury recommends the organization of a county welfare board to dispense relief to indigents and the employment of a trained executive to take charge of the department recommended.

It recommended the consolidation of the smaller school districts with the larger to increase facilities and urged the construction of more schools, the employment of additional instructors and the establishment of junior high schools in the larger communities of the county.

Construction of a building at the Weimer hospital for the exclusive use of the children; the employment of a superintendent for the new detention home, and the establishment of parks and playgrounds throughout the county are among the recommendations made in the report.

While not voicing direct opposition to student control of assemblies, the jury suggests that teachers be placed in charge. Direct opposition to student government was not stated.

Fraise was given to County Surveyor R. R. Arnold for the excellent condition of the highways. The report favors the construction of the Jonah Hill road to Moraga.
